5-minute talk: Please prepare a presentation (maximum of 5 minutes) that describes your project and research for a lay audience. These work best when you can also include a personal dimension. Make sure to introduce yourself, your background, and tell a little bit about your story of being a researcher in Greenland. This is of course challenging in 5 minutes but helps the audience relate to you as a person, thereby making the science more accessible. Bring your presentation (ppt) on a portable drive to be uploaded in the room in advance of the session.

Poster: There are 10 white walls/boards for hanging posters.

Demonstrations/Videos: There will be open space for equipment with some tables for setting up hands-on demonstrations or informational booths for playing videos on your own devices. Please download videos that you wish to show because internet may be limited or unavailable.
